

Infosys Signs Multi-Year Application Development Services Agreement with Volvo Car Corporation

Bangalore and Stockholm – March 17, 2014: Infosys, a global leader in consulting, technology and outsourcing solutions, has been selected by Volvo Cars as a strategic supplier to provide application development services for its global operations. This agreement builds on the long-standing relationship as Infosys has been supporting Volvo Cars since 2010 to rationalize and integrate its enterprise systems.

As part of the new agreement, Infosys will:

- Bring its proven global service delivery experience and ability to drive innovation and transformation – efficiently and effectively
- Develop applications to support multiple domains, including marketing and sales, customer service, manufacturing, product development, and corporate functions
- Deploy best practices specifically related to business process harmonization and delivery excellence, across transformation projects

Nitesh Bansal, Vice President Manufacturing Europe, Infosys:

“We will be a strategic supplier for Volvo Cars to deliver excellence and innovation to transform their IT landscape to a modern architecture. We are very pleased to collaborate with Volvo Cars in their strategic journey. We have an industry heritage, deep automotive expertise, and established track record of delivering that leaves us well positioned to be a strategic supplier to Volvo Cars. This agreement also reflects our strategic focus on the Nordic market and strengthens our presence in Sweden.”
